Framing Responsive Literacy Instruction in the National Policy Context

#cehdlit

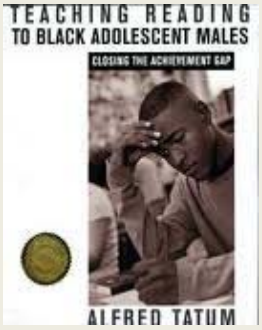

wifi network = Commons Conventions
password = CEHD15

CEHD
College of Education + Human Development

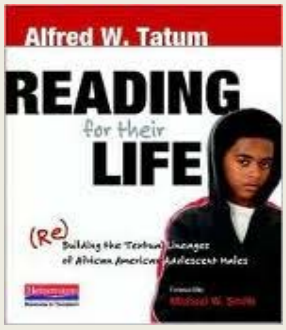

Policy Breakfast Series
Making a difference through research

University of Minnesota

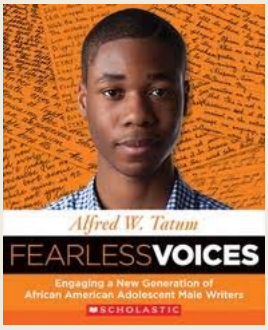

Advancing the Reading, Writing, & Intellectual Development of African American Boys

2005

2009

2013

UIC COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

MAKING GOOD ON THE PROMISE OF PUBLIC EDUCATION

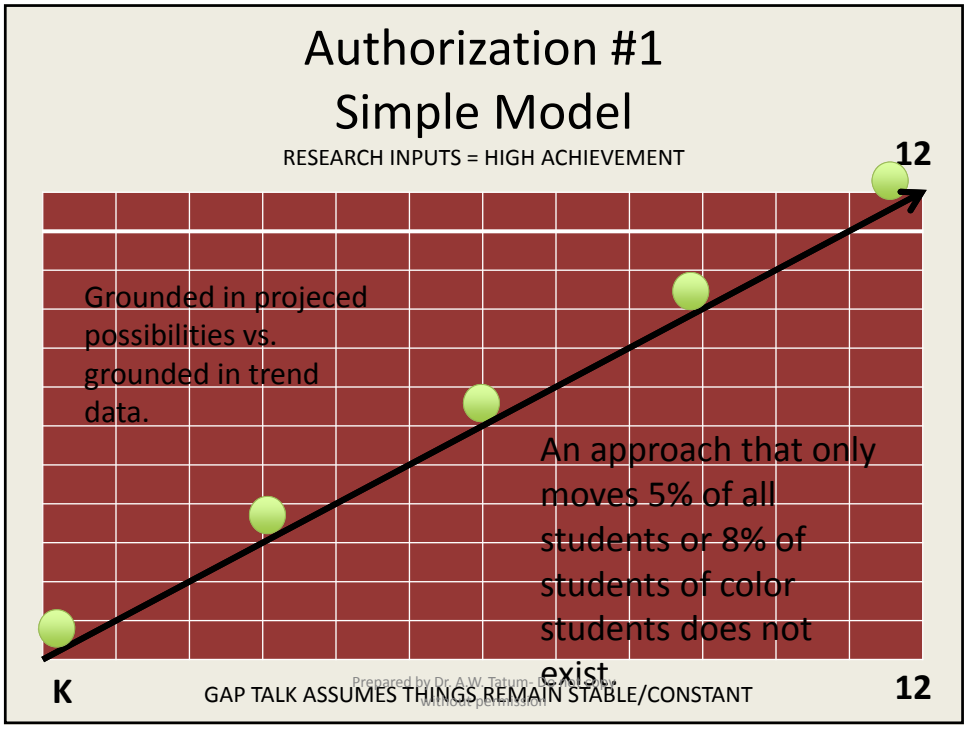

Four Goals

- Examine Policy Authorizations
- Provide Pathways to Develop Literacy Expertise
- Discuss approaches to build or rebuild Boys' Reading and Writing Relationships with Texts (Textual Lineages)
- Offer Policy Resolutions

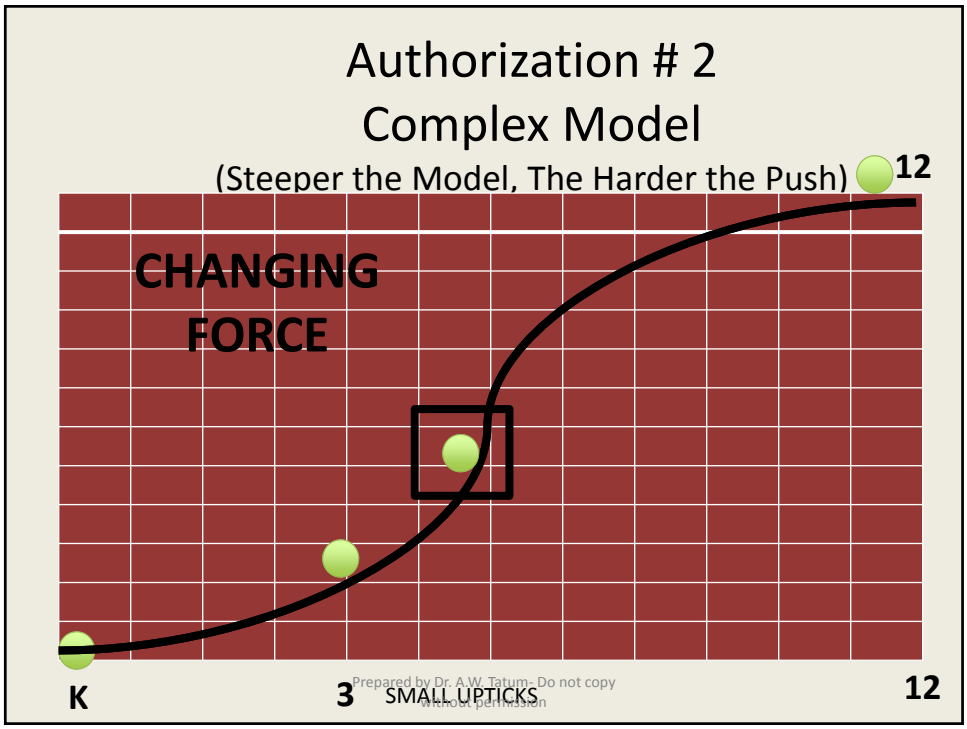

Examining Literacy Authorizations

- What are we authorizing?
  - Radical Love
  - Underperformance
  - Slow growth
  - Exponential growth
    - Language
    - Reading
    - Writing
    - Intellectual Growth
    - Human Development
- What are the basis of the authorizations?
  - Policy
  - Data
  - Teachers
  - Students
- How are the authorizations contributing to the literacy development of African American boys in grades prek-12?
  - Projected goals
  - Proposed goals
  - Academic and Personal Outcomes

Property of Dr. Jeff Kaum- Do not copy without permission

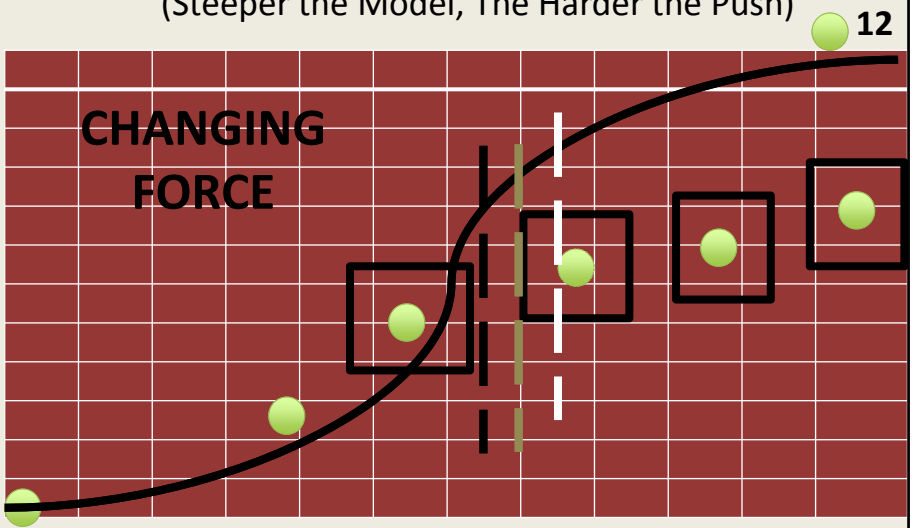

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum. Do not copy without permission

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum. Do not copy without permission

Complex Model

(Steeper the Model, The Harder the Push)

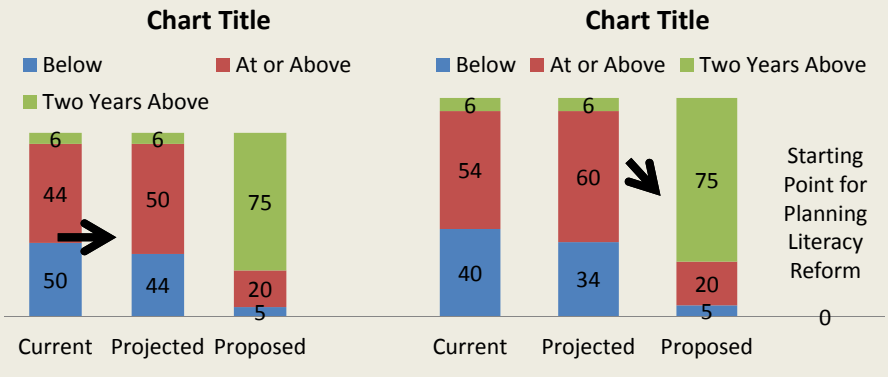

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum. Do not copy without permission

Assessment System

Current ➔ Projected vs. Proposed

"It is safer to fail children than fail ourselves" - AWT

Moving African American boys toward advanced reading and writing levels

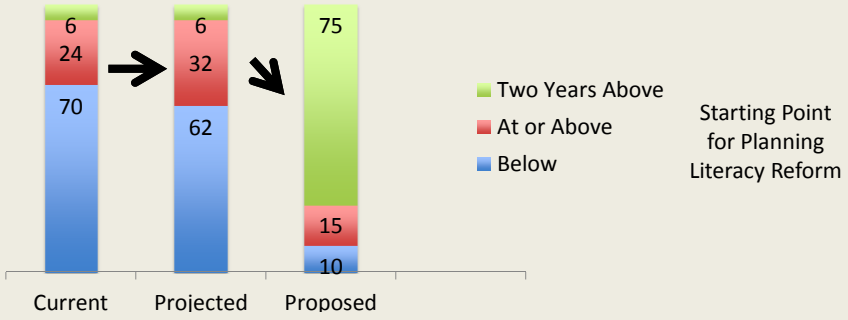

Assessment System

Current ➔ Projected vs. Proposed

"It is safer to fail children than fail ourselves" - AWT

Moving African American boys toward advanced reading and writing levels

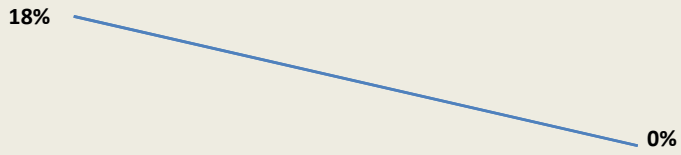

Improved Student Outcomes

Reading Proficiency, 3rd Grade

Reading Proficiency	5% Annual Increase	13-14	14-15	15-16	16-17	17-18	18-19	19-20
		42%	47%	52%	57%	62%	67%	72%
		18%						0%
Reading Proficiency – Students of Color	8% Annual increase	24%	32%	40%	48%	56%	64%	72%
		(76%)	(68%)	(60%)	(52%)	(44%)	(36%)	(28%)

Improved Student Outcomes
Reading Proficiency, 3rd Grade

Reading Proficiency	5% Annual Increase	13-14	14-15	15-16	16-17	17-18	18-19	19-20
		42%	47%	52%	57%	62%	67%	72%

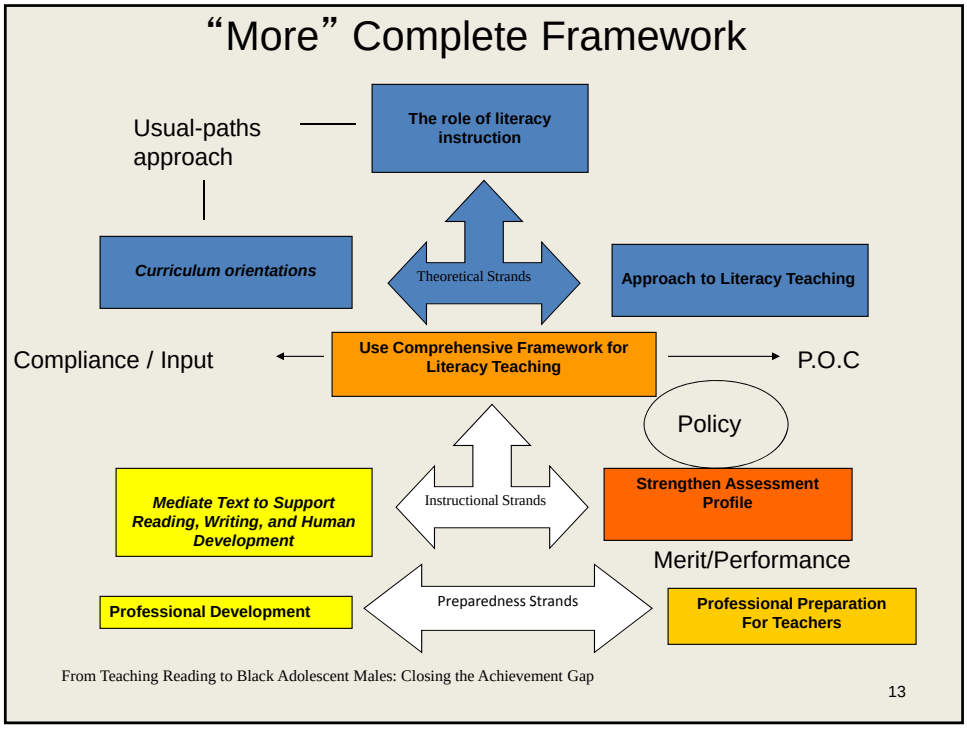

Reading Proficiency – Students of Color	8% Annual increase	24%	32%	40%	48%	56%	64%	72%
		*(76%)	(68%)	(60%)	(52%)	(44%)	(36%)	(28%)

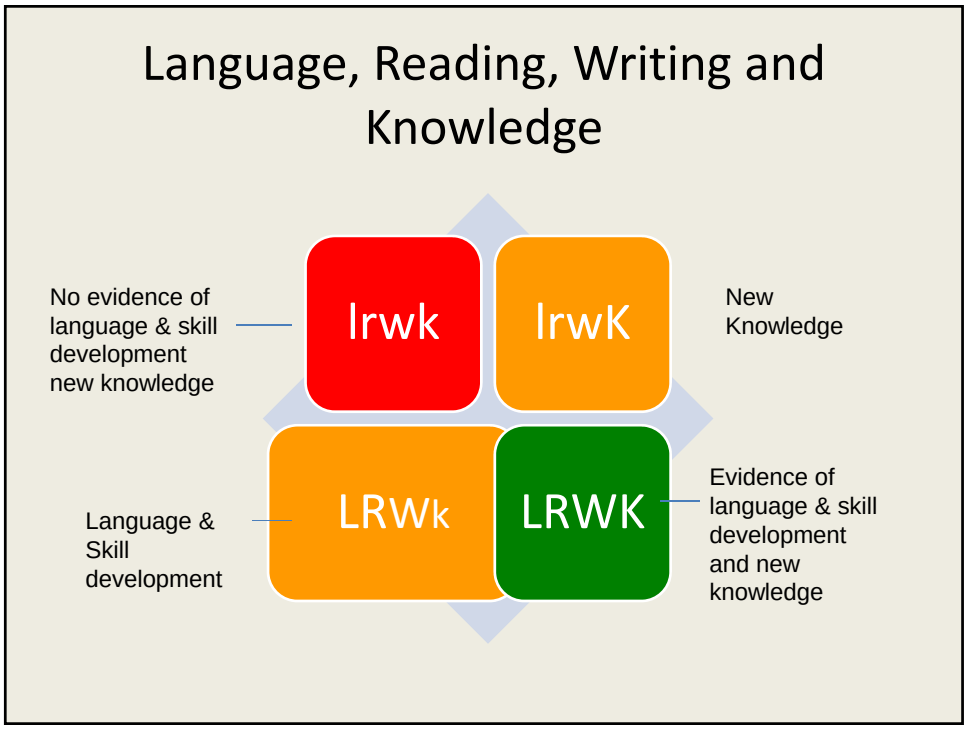

*Poverty, Illiteracy, Dropout, Unemployment Plan

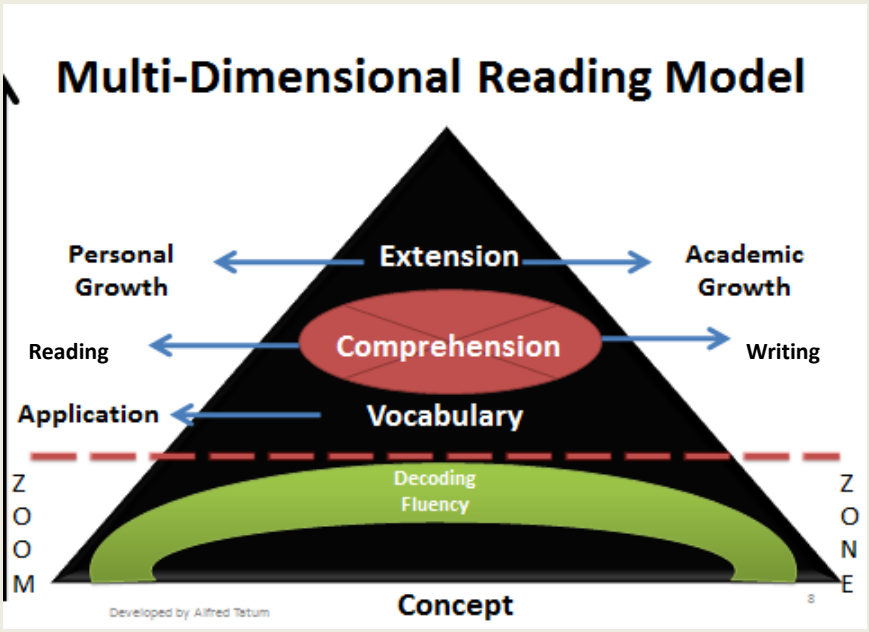

Vital Signs

R & W	Readers & Educators	R&W Instruction	Educators
Provide the working tools and models	Improving the human condition (Why)	Rescuing the significance of teaching (How)	Interacting with students, not scorecards of achievement (who)
Word knowledge	Home Life	Quality Instructional Support	Competence
Fluency	Culture (D,E,G)	Text	Commitment
Strategy knowledge	Environment	Context	Caring/Compassion
Writing	Language	Assessment	Culpability
Language & Language Use	Economics	Technology	Courage

12

"More" Complete Framework
Usual-paths approach
The role of literacy instruction
Curriculum orientations
Theoretical Strands
Approach to Literacy Teaching
Compliance / Input
Use Comprehensive Framework for Literacy Teaching
P.O.C
Policy
Mediate Text to Support Reading, Writing, and Human Development
Instructional Strands
Strengthen Assessment Profile
Merit/Performance
Professional Development
Preparedness Strands
Professional Preparation For Teachers
From Teaching Reading to Black Adolescent Males: Closing the Achievement Gap 13

Language, Reading, Writing and Knowledge
No evidence of language & skill development new knowledge
lrwk
lrwK
New Knowledge
LRWk
LRWK
Language & Skill development
Evidence of language & skill development and new knowledge

Boys College

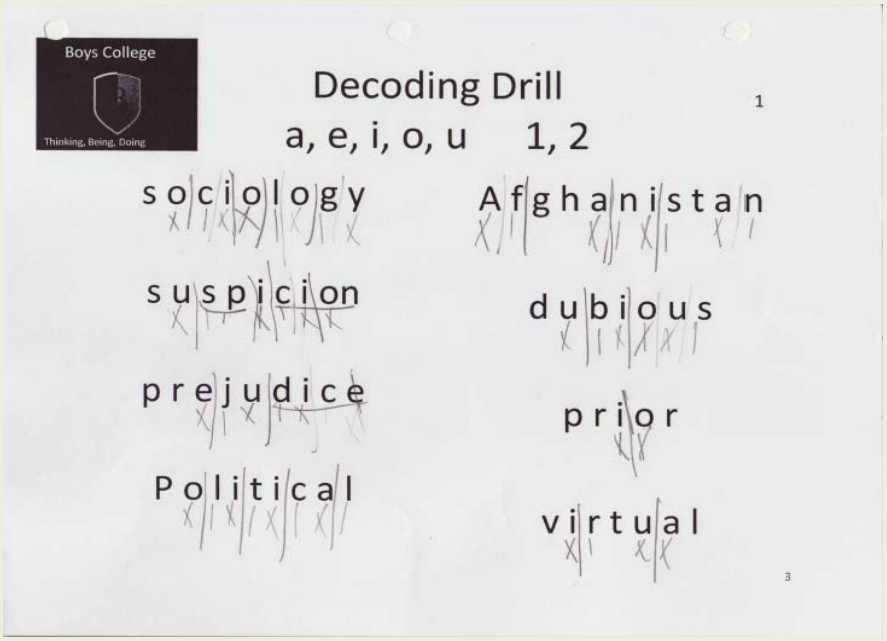

10-Point Curricular Focus

(Making Texts Meaningful / Textual Lineages)

Thinking, Being, Doing

- Sociology
- Philosophy
- Chemistry
- Economics
- Medicine
- Mathematics
- Biology
- Law
- Engineering
- Classics

Developed by Alfred Tatum 16

A,E,I,O,U count to 1 count to 2

- Split consonant between vowels
  - bal / lad
- Move one consonant between vowels to the next syllable
  - te / na / cious
- Split neighboring vowels
  - jo / vi / al
- Do not separate blends or word groupings that need each other
  - ous, qu, bl, cl, dr,

Boys College

Thinking, Being, Doing

1

Kabe

Concept of Reading Template

Being a problem is a Horrifying experience. The terrorist attacks, the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq (other countries), and violence around the World have affected the American dream for American Arabs and Muslims. In the society of some Americans, they have become known as dangerous outsiders.

Developed by Alfred Tatum 5

Like the Rest

Dr. A. Tatum
February 13, 2011
3:33 pm

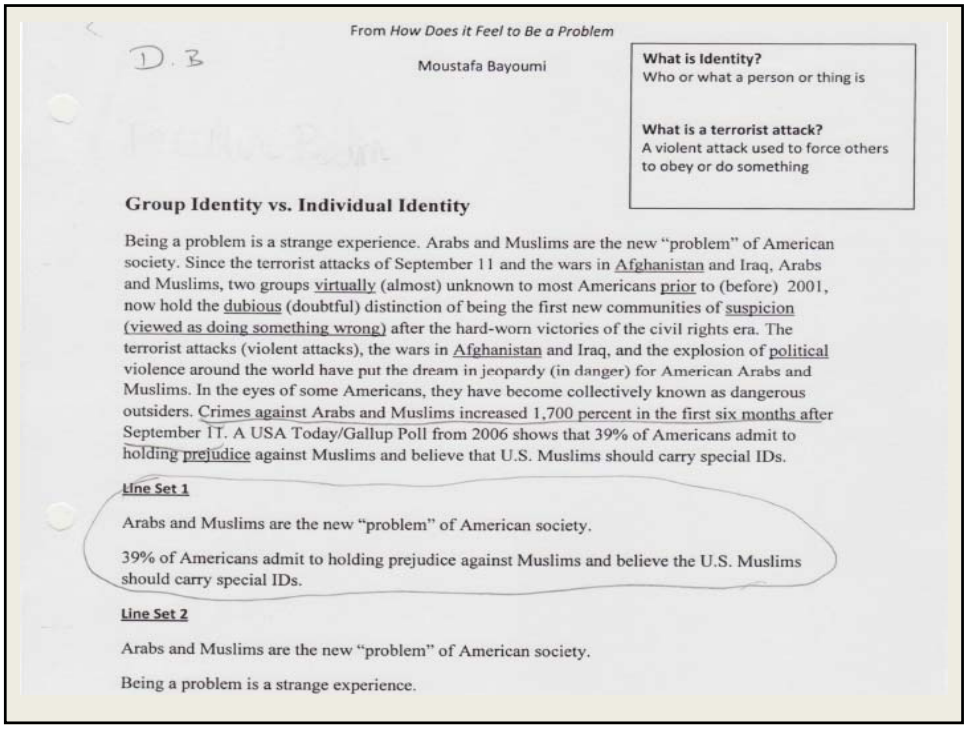

3.5 million jelly beans in a factory
Ready to be shipped

I am red jelly bean number 600,599
Will I make it out into the world?
Or, trashed like all the wasted jelly beans?

Should I hope that the new manager likes red jelly beans?
Or, should I hope the manager likes me?

Am I just a red jelly bean like the rest?
Or, am I more?

Developed by Alfred Tatum 12

From How Does it Feel to Be a Problem

D. B

Moustafa Bayoumi

What is Identity?
Who or what a person or thing is

What is a terrorist attack?
A violent attack used to force others to obey or do something

Group Identity vs. Individual Identity

Being a problem is a strange experience. Arabs and Muslims are the new "problem" of American society. Since the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, Arabs and Muslims, two groups virtually (almost) unknown to most Americans prior to (before) 2001, now hold the dubious (doubtful) distinction of being the first new communities of suspicion (viewed as doing something wrong) after the hard-worn victories of the civil rights era. The terrorist attacks (violent attacks), the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, and the explosion of political violence around the world have put the dream in jeopardy (in danger) for American Arabs and Muslims. In the eyes of some Americans, they have become collectively known as dangerous outsiders. Crimes against Arabs and Muslims increased 1,700 percent in the first six months after September 11. A USA Today/Gallup Poll from 2006 shows that 39% of Americans admit to holding prejudice against Muslims and believe that U.S. Muslims should carry special IDs.

Line Set 1

Arabs and Muslims are the new "problem" of American society.

39% of Americans admit to holding prejudice against Muslims and believe the U.S. Muslims should carry special IDs.

Line Set 2

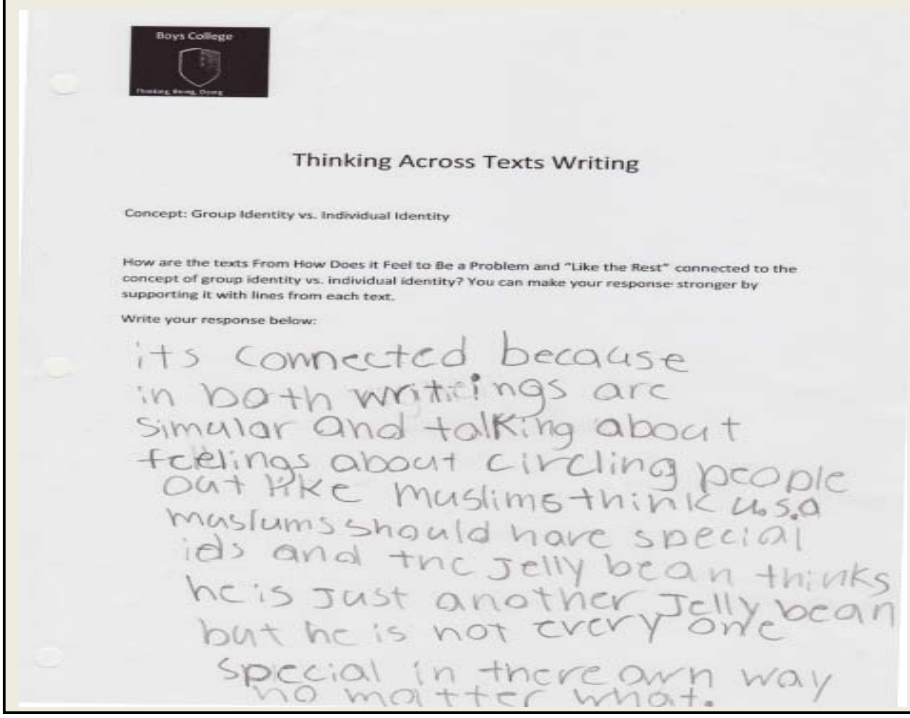

Arabs and Muslims are the new "problem" of American society.

Being a problem is a strange experience.

Group Identity vs. Individual Identity

Being a problem is a strange experience. Arabs and Muslims are the new "problem" of American society. Since the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, Arabs and Muslims, two groups virtually (almost) unknown to most Americans prior to (before) 2001, now hold the dubious (doubtful) distinction of being the first new communities of suspicion (viewed as doing something wrong)

after the hard-worn victories of the civil rights era. The terrorist attacks (violent attacks), the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, and the explosion of political violence around the world have put the dream in jeopardy (in danger) for American Arabs and Muslims. In the eyes of some Americans, they have become collectively known as dangerous outsiders. Crimes against Arabs and Muslims increased 1,700 percent in the first six months after September 11. A USA Today/Gallup Poll from 2006 shows that 39% of Americans admit to holding prejudice against Muslims and believe that U.S. Muslims should carry special IDs.

Boys College

Thinking Across Texts Writing

Concept: Group Identity vs. Individual Identity

How are the texts From How Does it Feel to Be a Problem and "Like the Rest" connected to the concept of group identity vs. individual identity? You can make your response stronger by supporting it with lines from each text.

Write your response below:

its connected because in both writings are simular and talking about feelings about circling people out like muslims think u.s.a muslums should have special ids and the jelly bean thinks he is just another jelly bean but he is not every one special in there own way no matter what.

Its connected because in both writings are simalar and talking about people and circling people out like Muslums think U.S.A Muslums should have special ids and the jelly bean thinks he just another jelly bean but he is not. Everyone is special in there own way no matter what.

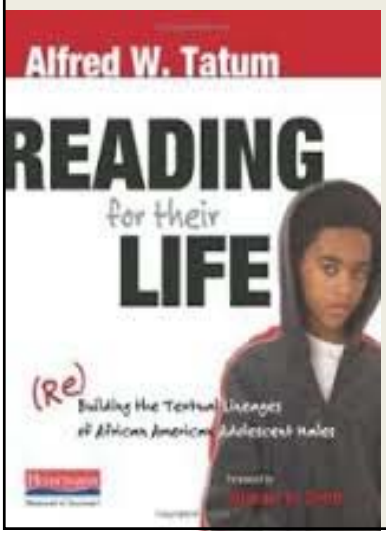

After collaborative writing critique
(LRWK)

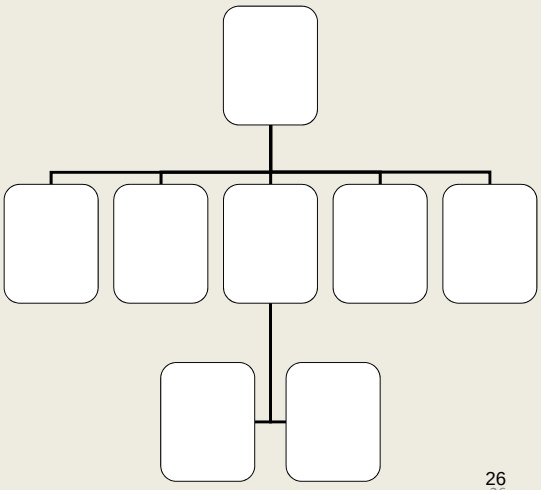

The texts are connected. Both writings are similar with talk about singling people out. For example, some people think U.S.A Muslims should have special IDs. The jelly bean thinks he's just another jelly bean, but he is not. Everyone is special in their own way no matter what.

Do not copy without permission

The Severing of Reading & Writing Lineages

One of the Great Tragedies of American Education

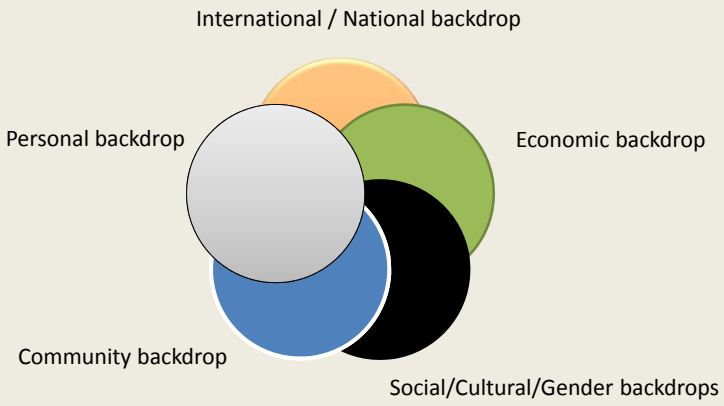

Establishing the Criteria Litmus Test

- What questions should we be asking about our text selections?
  - Will students be underserved by "this" text?
  - What makes this text essential or useful?
  - Out of all of the text in the world, why this one for students in this time and space?
  - Will I love to rush in to teach this text?
  - Will this text allow me to find out more about me as I find out more about my students? Help me reconcile differences?
  - How can this text be appropriately paced to engage students?
  - What is the appropriate starting point for this text?
  - Is "this" a considerate and challenging text?
  - Does this text lend itself to academic excellence "smarter" and identity development?
  - Okay, I read this text, now what?
  - Will this text restore confidence in literacy instruction?
  - Do the texts serve as writing and language coaches?

27

Textual forces

28

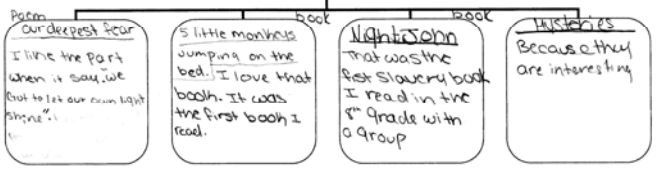

Directions: In each box below, place the title of a book, essay, or poem that you think you will always remember. Place only one title in a box. Explain why you think you will always remember the book, essay, or poem. Look at the example.

Michaela.
3-14-07

Invictus
I love the last two lines of this poem. It was the first poem I ever learned.

Example

I like the part when it say, "We got to let our own light shine."

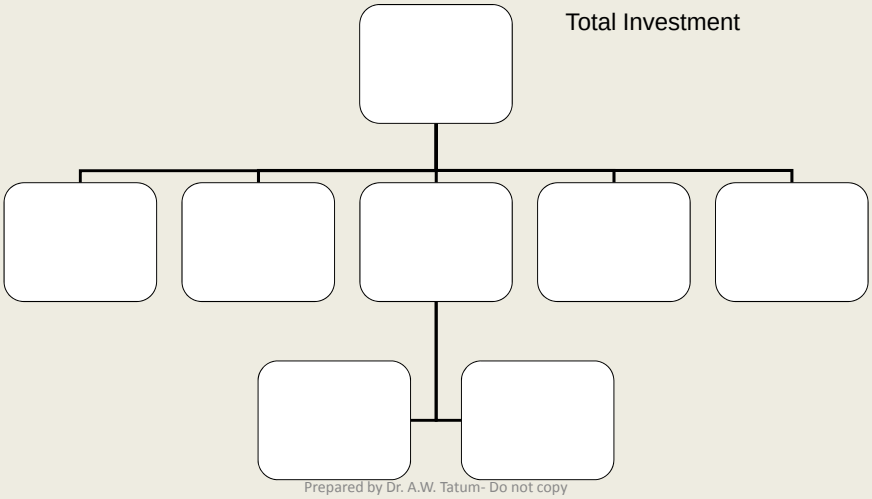

Do not copy without permission

Textual Lineage

Writing

Total Investment

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum- Do not copy without permission

Four Literacy Platforms

1. Defining self - finding the text and language that serve as a coach

1. Becoming resilient – remaining steadfast in the face of conditions inside and outside of school

2. Engaging others – Bringing others into the fold for striving toward a better humanity for all

3. Building capacity – Creating a foundation for future generations, agenda-building

31

CCSS Conceptual Framing

Orientations for Literacy for African American Males	CCSS
Reading and writing, debating, critiquing and being able to make meaning of one's identity Securing freedom and becoming self-determined Establishing platforms to secure civil, economic, educational, political, and social rights. Building agendas to improve and enhance the condition of the African American community.	Providing appropriate benchmarks for all students, regardless of where they live. Defining the knowledge and skills students should have within their K-12 education careers so that they will graduate high school able to succeed in entry-level, credit-bearing academic college courses and in workforce training programs.	Low-level of Agreement

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum- Do not copy without permission

Writing

	CCSS
Producing texts that defined their lives and defined their times	Writing logical arguments based on substantive claims, sound reasoning, and relevant evidence	Moderate to high

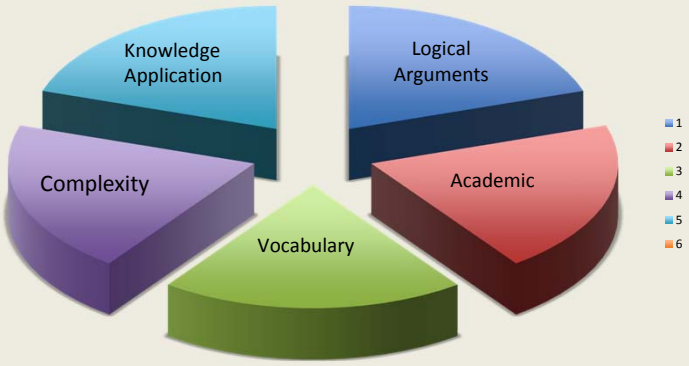

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum- Do not copy without permission

Language

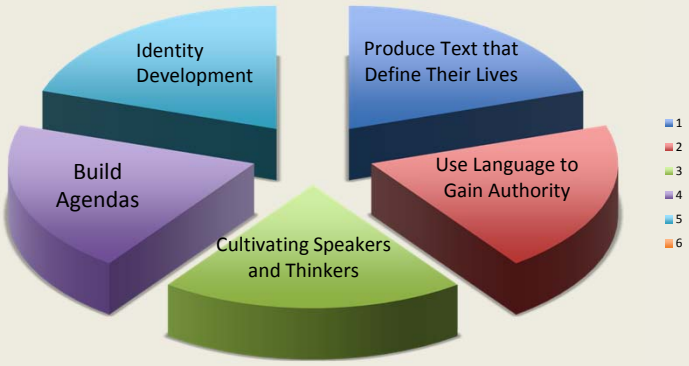

Using language to (re)claim the authority over them and counter oppressive and harsh circumstances (Tatum, 2009). Sharing knowledge, promoting ideas and cultivating a scholarly and literate way of life (Belt-Beyan, 2004). Cultivating speakers and thinkers	Growing their vocabularies through a mix of conversations, direct instruction, and reading. Expanding students' repertoire of words and phrases. Preparing students for real-life experience at college and in 21st century careers. Using formal English in their writing and speaking and making skillful choices among the many ways to express themselves through language.	Moderate to high

Prepared by Dr. A.W. Tatum- Do not copy without permission

COMMON CORE

Common Core (+)

GOVERNOR MARK DAYTON

YALE PLAN

MINNESOTA PLAN

$1 Billion Budget Surplus

Policy Resolutions

1. Develop stronger, better-defined literacy campaigns
2. Move beyond narrow frames of scholarship that yield problematic authorizations
3. Invest in Literacy Impact Projects aimed at exponential growth
4. Establish a State Center for the Reading Achievement of African American Males (50 CRAAAM Centers – Minnesota can be first in the nation)

It's not just about students' literacies; it's about their lives.

Tatum, 2005

Panel Discussion

- Jonathan Hamilton, Research Director, Minnesota Minority Education Partnership
- Gevonee Ford, Founder and Executive Director, Network for the Development of Children of African Descent
- Tina Willette, Principal, Salem Hills & Athanaeum Elementary School, ISD 199
- Lori Helman, Director, Minnesota Center for Reading Research

