Timing

1. Due to the nature of LT's written exams, they are offered twice per year: during the second week of Fall and Spring terms. Towards the end of coursework, students discuss with advisers when the most appropriate time is to take written exams.
2. You will be notified by the LT PAC of the results of your written exam in approximately 4 weeks.
3. Upon satisfactory completion of written exam, schedule an oral exam with your committee. We encourage students to schedule and take their oral exams and written exams in the same semester
4. After your oral exam, work with your adviser on developing the dissertation proposal.

Written Exam

Timed, closed book and take-home. There are 3 parts to LT's written exams:

- Two "in-house" exams (each 4 hours over 2 days)
- one take-home exam (1 week)

The take-home exam and one "in-house" exam are assessed by all LT faculty. The "in house" exam submitted by the outside committee member is assessed by that member.

A rating scale of 1 to 5 (highest score) is used to assess each exam. The final score on each exam will be used to obtain an average of the raters' scores. The average scores on each question are added together to obtain an overall composite written exam score.
Composite score

- 1.5 or below: fail
- 3 or below: revisions are needed
- 3 and above: pass
- 4.5 or higher: pass with distinction

If you fail the first exams, you have one more opportunity to take the exam and pass it before being asked to exit the program.

Oral Exam

The oral exam is an opportunity to demonstrate your understanding of major concepts in the field and to develop solutions to germane topics.

We will also examine the content/details of your written exams.

Exam questions typically relate to your degree plan (courses taken etc.) and your proposed area(s) of future/dissertation research. Questions pertaining to coursework are also asked.
