Conditions:

- PsyF graduate students can request up to $500 of travel funds each "academic year", defined as the period September 1 –August 31.
- Receipts can be submitted for airfare, registration, ground transportation, and hotel. Receipts cannot be submitted for meals or any other expenses.
- A student may make up to 2 requests per academic year. For example, a student might request $200 for their hotel for conference 1 and $300 for their airfare and registration for conference 2.
- Funds can only be requested for the academic year in which expenses are incurred.
- The purpose of the PsyF travel funding is to support students' development as researchers and members of their professional community. Therefore, students must be a named author on a presentation, poster, roundtable, or other session format. However, we make exceptions in two circumstances. The first exception is for first-year students, for obvious reasons. The second exception is for senior (e.g., ABD) students who submitted a proposal to a primary conference in their field that was rejected. Because they are close to graduating and going on the job market, attending such conferences is important, and they are eligible for the travel funding once.
- The expectation is that the conference experience will inform the student's research and/or further their professional development, and will be reflected in their UMN activities. For example, it might lead to a presentation or poster at the department's Graduate Student Research Day or the College's Research Day, upon returning.

Upon return, present the following to Sharon Sawyer within 30 days:

- Proof of attendance (e.g., conference badge).
- A copy of the conference program showing your presentation, if you are an author/co-author.
- Original receipts for expenses for which you are requesting reimbursement.
- Be sure to include detailed information about your travel: who, what, when, where and why (for example: I traveled to Indianapolis, IN to present a poster entitled "XXX" at the national meeting of ABC Society, July 20 -25, 2019).
- Submit these materials to Sharon Sawyer within 30 days after the conference.
- Last date to submit for reimbursement for the current academic year is August 31.

You must submit your reimbursement request through Chrome River within 30 days after the conference. Contact Sharon Sawyer for information for account information and dollar amount to enter into Chrome River, or any other questions you have about using Chrome River.
